

Internship Infra Guidelines during leave

Objective

This document outlines the rules, regulations, and compliance requirements that interns must follow while working from home during their designated semester examination preparation period. Adherence to these policies ensures security, productivity, and compliance with organizational standards.

Dos and Don'ts

Hardware Dos:

1. Maintain the office laptop in excellent condition and store it in a safe location.
2. Report any technical issues with the laptop immediately to the assigned batch owner via mail.
3. Use the laptop strictly for only internship-related purposes.

Don'ts:

1. Avoid exposing the laptop to physical damage or risky environments.
2. Do not share the laptop with unauthorized individuals.
3. Do not attempt self-repair or unauthorized servicing of the laptop.

Software Dos:

1. Submit software installation requests through a formal email to the respective batch owner.
2. Ensure all installed software complies with company standards.

Don'ts:

1. Do not download or install any applications from external websites.
2. Avoid tampering with existing software configurations.
3. Refrain from using non-approved third-party tools.

Network Dos:

1. Ensure a stable and secure internet connection for virtual training sessions and communication.
2. Use trusted private networks to access the internet during WFH.

Don'ts:

1. Avoid public or open networks as they pose security risks.
2. Do not browse non-internship-related websites.

3. Do not share company-related details, files, or documents on any websites, platforms, or external communication channels.
4. Prevent unauthorized access to company systems over the internet.

Compliance Guidelines

1. Adhere strictly to the company's Hardware Asset Management (HAM) norms regarding laptop usage and penalties for damage.
2. Follow organizational guidelines for software use, which prohibit the use of unauthorized applications.
3. Maintain confidentiality and ensure data privacy by accessing secure networks only.

Non-Compliance

Failure to adhere to the outlined policies will result in disciplinary action, which may include penalties under HAM norms, restriction of access to company systems, or termination of the internship agreement.
